The story tells of two teens who are complete opposite of each other, but they both face the challenge of having cystic fibrosis. Stella Grant is willing to do whatever it takes to stay healthy in order to have a lung transplant, but Will Newman wants to see the world instead of caring about his treatments or trying a new clinical drug trial.

Stella and Will starts to develop a special connection with each other, but they have to stay six feet apart from each other or Stella may not qualify for the transplant. Even though they both understand the risks of being around each other. What happens if they take a step closer toward each other and they are Five Feet Apart?
